i Only the semester version of Trial Practice (not intersession version) counts toward the Criminal Justice Concentration.

ii A student could take Death Penalty in its simulation form to satisfy the post-conviction process requirement AND take another capstone to fulfill the capstone requirement. However, the same Death Penalty course could not fulfill both requirements.

iii A student who took Wrongful Convictions without participating in the Innocence Project Clinic could use the Wrongful Convictions class to satisfy the post-conviction process requirement. But a student who took Wrongful Convictions as a part of the Innocence Project Clinic and sought credit for the Clinic as a capstone experience could not count Wrongful Convictions as satisfying the post- conviction process requirement.

iv A student could take Sentencing in its simulation form to satisfy the post-conviction process requirement AND take another capstone to fulfill the capstone requirement. However, the same Sentencing course could not fulfill both requirements.

The courses listed above have been approved for the Criminal Justice Concentration, but do not necessarily reflect the current course offerings.
